THE CONTRIBUTION OF AUSTRALIAN THINK TANKS TO PUBLIC UNDERSTANDING AND NATIONAL POLICY ON INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS: A MIDDLE EAST PERSPECTIVE

Australian National University

In his presentation, Ian Dudgeon will discuss the contribution of the AIIA and other Australian think tanks to public understanding and national policy on international relations, particularly in the context of West, Central and South Asia. Issues will include audiences targeted by think tanks in Australia and overseas, how they interface with those audiences, including presentations, seminars and conferences at both track 1.5 (with government) and track 2 (with other non-government organizations, especially academia), the selection of topics, themes, authors and presenters, and 'value-add'.

Mr Dudgeon will discuss these issues generally and in the context of his own experience reporting across the region.
