REJECTED GEORGIANS? CITIZENS OF GEORGIA WITH ARMENIAN NAMES IN SEARCH OF THEIR NATIONAL SELVES

Australian
National University

For the “Ugly Duckling”, the mere fact of being born in the nest of a duck, growing up amongst duckling-siblings and possessing impressive swimming skills is not a guarantee to be perceived as a duck. Just so, for Georgian citizens of Armenian origin, the mere fact of being born in Georgia, speaking the dominant language and knowing the culture is not a guarantee of automatic admission to the dominant group. This research presentation examines reminding practices carried out by the ‘reminder society’: members of the dominant Georgian nation who do not allow ethnic Armenians to forget their non-Georgian origins.
